The exhibition is entitled Whispers of Heavenly Death as Kelly McCallum said «it is the title of one of my favorite poems by Walt Whitman».

For Whispers of Heavenly Death Kelly McCallum will explode onto the Swiss art scene with her intricate juxtapositions of brilliant goldsmithing and memento mori.

McCallum exhibits a jeweler's interest in scale and detailing. In creating her sculptural pieces she draws from her interest in storytelling, natural history, Victorian taxidermy, insects, precious metals and other treasures from her personal collection of oddities and natural wonders. Her work explores themes of death, decadence, decay and rebirth, as well as perceptions of preservation and disintegration. Taxidermy seeks to preserve life by celebrating death. It is a strange half-life, a suspension, an illusion; she said.

Kelly McCallum was born in Toronto, Canada, in 1979. She received a MA from Royal College of Art London in 2006. Recent exhibitions include: Plumage and Paradise at the Shizaru, London, Telling Tales at the Victoria and Albert Museum, London and Earthly Delights at the Laleh June Galerie, Basel. McCallum lives and works in London.

Christine Boillat's Accidents, 2012 are a series of dramatic, large-scale fusain (charcoal) on paper drawings, made by Boillat over many weeks on the site of her studio in Zurich.
